THE NEWS OF THE STATE BRIEFLY CHRONICLED.

GEORGIA POLITICS.

Matters of Political Interest Happening Throughout the State.

A Serious Accident Near Atlanta—Old Bachelors to be Outlawed—A New Cotton Picker—The Thomaston Methodists—In fact, the News from All Parts of the State.

The Member from Dooley.

VINCENT, October 11.—[Special.]—The Constitution publishes T. A. Graham as the representative from Dooley. The member-elect is T. J. Ray. W. L. Graham is a candidate for sheriff.

Spalding's Representative.

GRIFFIN, October 11.—[Special.]—One representative is named Frank Flynt, not T. G. Flynt who was published in your list of representatives. There is a T. G. Flynt in the county who is a father of our representative.

Death of J. M. Muse.

VILLA Rica, Georgia, October 11.—[Special.]—Rev. J. M. Muse died in his home near Pleasant Grove church yesterday evening at 4 o'clock. He was a prominent minister of the Baptist church for almost a half century, and was much beloved by his congregation at Pleasant Grove.

Rockdale Full of Candidates.

CONYERS, Ga., October 11.—[Special.]—There are twenty two candidates out for the different offices in this county, and more to follow. There are five candidates for the office of treasurer; viz: A Presbyterian, a Methodist, a Primitive Baptist, a Missionary Baptist and an undenominational or a member of no church.

Robbing an Atlanta Drummer.

CXANNA, Ala., October 11.—[Special.]—Lacy Banks, a negro, was captured last night in the act of robbing the clothes of Mr. Hall, an Atlanta drummer. He had secured $5. Banks watched his opportunity and reached Mr. Hall's room by means of a scaffold, supposing he was asleep. The watchman heard him and he was caught in the room.

SMITH IN CARRICK.

Finding Alabama Railroad Rates.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., October 11.—[Special.]—The Alabama railroad commission had before them to-day H. R. Coulter, general freight agent, and E. P. Wilson, general passenger agent, of the Alabama Great Southern railroad, of the Exchange syndicate. Action in reference to their tariff was postponed to enable the officers to furnish the commission with full information. The attorney for Tom Greene, general southern agent of the Cincinnati Southern, headquarters Atlanta, was also here and was heartily greeted by his hosts of Montgomery friends.

Matters in Rome.

ROME, Ga., October 11.—[Special.]—The funeral of Mrs. Rebekah Denny took place this afternoon. The services were held at the First Presbyterian church, and were largely attended.

After the adjournment of court to-day a meeting of the bar was held, at which resolutions were adopted, complimenting Judge Bain on the manner in which he had conducted the business of the court during the present week.

Revisual meetings continue at the Presbyterian church, conducted by Dr. R. F. Bunting. To-morrow new members will be received.

A meeting of the teachers of the public schools was held to-day, and Superintendent Nease gave them instructions as to their duties. Everything is in readiness for the opening on Monday.

The Thomaston Methodists.

THOMASTON, Ga., October 11.—[Special.]—The Methodists of Thomaston to-day said to Mr. P. W. White, "We are sorry to inform you that we have removed to give place to a new and more modern house." The contract for the new one has been let to Mr. N. S. Eaves, of Cartersville, who is now building the Mitchell church. The building will be of brick, with tower and will be warmed by gas. The cost will be $10,000. We will be compelled as soon as the old building can be removed from the site and pushed to as early a completion as possible.

The weather is warm for the season and quite dry. No rain in consequence in this immediate vicinity for four weeks. Cane, potatoe and gardenings are going well.

A few northern visitors have already arrived. The number promises to be large.

MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA.

A Double Element—Stabbing Scare.—The Monteagle Centennial.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., October 11.—[Special.]—Judge Crisp, the republican candidate for congress from the fourth Alabama district, visited Montgomery today. As a matter of course he hopes to be elected.

Festivities were the order of the day. The new elevator of the Exchange hotel, which was to be placed in position, came down through negligence and burst a wire. A doublet, Mr. Alexander, was removed to give place to a new and more modern house. The contract for the new one has been let to Mr. N. S. Eaves, of Cartersville, who is now building the Mitchell church. The building will be of brick, with tower and will be warmed by gas. The cost will be $10,000. We will be compelled as soon as the old building can be removed from the site and pushed to as early a completion as possible.

ATHENS' AFFAIRS.

A Serious Accident—Professor White's Experience with Cotton Seed.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 11.—[Special.]—Today Mr. John Reid, living near the Piner paper mill, fell off a wagon loaded with corn and broke his leg in two places. The paper mill has all the machinery in position for making wood pulp paper and will commence turning it out in a few days. The machinery works splendidly. A new Baptist church will be built near the house of Mr. Will Henry Morton in this country. Mrs. Morton has subscribed one-half the amount necessary to build the church. It is a permanent and firm roof, and the next meeting of the Georgia agricultural society, Professor White will have some interesting experiments to disclose in regard to cotton seed.

He has written to the president of the university to advise him of his plan, and remained in that service till the close of the war. He was compelled to leave the country, and went to Africa from Greenland, by way of the Cape of Good Hope, and finally reached the United States. He bears witness to no false gods. To the men of the north, republicans as well as democrats, who can see above any judgment and vision, who can rise above prejudice and passion, who can stand by their principles and stand up for the cause of freedom, the south stands ready to receive them.

Mr. Fuller, son of Justice Fuller, to-day stabled his mule at the stable of Mr. W. H. Sturges. Jack A. Colomedia, a man employed at the Montgomery oil works, was caught in the machinery and was severely injured. Weather still hot and dry. Suffering continues. Marion Keener, a boy five years old, a recent graduate of Monroe school, and a clever, good citizen in the words of his teacher, succeeded to fight after several months sickness.

The speaker closed amid prolonged applause. The meeting was enthusiastic and demonstrated the fact that the people are overwhelmingly for the name.

SAVANNAH.

Death of Colon el Wm. M. Steed—Mr. Henr. H. Davis Buried His Legs.

SAVANNAH, Ga., October 11.—[Special.]—Colonel William M. Steed, eldest son of Colonel J. R. Steed, formerly editor of the old Savannah Republican, died here last night, aged thirty-nine years.

He was a member of company B, Oglethorpe Light Infantry, and was captured at Fort Pulaski. Subsequently he was appointed midshipman in the confederate navy, and remained in that service till the close of the war. He was compelled to leave the country, and went to Africa from Greenland, by way of the Cape of Good Hope, and finally reached the United States. He bears witness to no false gods. To the men of the north, republicans as well as democrats, who can see above any judgment and vision, who can rise above prejudice and passion, who can stand by their principles and stand up for the cause of freedom, the south stands ready to receive them.

ELAINE AND THE COAL MEN.

It was on this smoldering fire of discontent that the exposure of James G. Blaine's Hocking valley speculations—which would, in my opinion, be leading project—would have been fully exposed if he had not been implicated in that of his father, John Jarrett.

Arthur, October 11.—An adjourned meeting of the republican convention of the third congressional district to-morrow. Samuel J. Bentz was unanimously nominated for congress.

Elkinton, October 11.—At an adjourned meeting
of the republican convention of the third congressional district to-morrow. Samuel J. Bentz was unanimously nominated for congress.

Pittsburgh, October 11.—The democratic committee
of the second congressional district to-day agreed to support William Everett, independent nominee. The democrats at their convention
nominated John Quincy Adams, whose declination had been confirmed, and he and sons of his friends were embittered with the national republican party.

The coal and iron miners far and wide were appalled by this alleged affront to their representative.

Jarrett, who is still a ableish
schemer, and who is still the predominant of the amalgamated union to run for congress. He thought his labor friends would enable him to secure the republican nomination
in one of the Pittsburgh districts but they didn't. They saw his selfish schemes and abominable conduct, and the republican sentiment, the extent of which no man can now estimate, set in among coal and iron workers in this state, West Virginia and Ohio.

Elkinton, October 11.—After the speech of General Cleveland's programme, Mr. Arthur being a candidate for re-nomination, could not afford to come to make the appointment.

Mr. Jarrett's name was sent to the Senate of the United States.

This may seem like ancient history, but its pertinency will be made immediately apparent.

After Jarrett's speech was sent to the senate
by President Arthur, Jarrett makes a speech at a great hall in Lakewood, Ohio, and says that he was beaten to be elected. General Cleveland than president of the United States. Arthur heard this, and, smirking under the imputation
of his accidental unworthiness, privately intimated to several senators who stood near him that he would not be displeased if the Senate failed to confirm Mr. Jarrett's appointment.

He was to be a good fit for the appointment.

abominable conduct, and the republican
sentiment, the extent of which no man can
now estimate, set in among coal and iron workers in this state, West Virginia and Ohio.

Elkinton, October 11.—After the speech of General Cleveland's programme, Mr. Arthur being a candidate for re-nomination, could not afford to come to make the appointment.

Mr. Jarrett's name was sent to the Senate of the United States.

This may seem like ancient history, but its
pertinency will be made immediately apparent.

After Jarrett's speech was sent to the senate
by President Arthur, Jarrett makes a speech at
a great hall in Lakewood, Ohio, and says that he was beaten to be elected. General Cleveland
than president of the United States. Arthur
heard this, and, smirking under the imputation
of his accidental unworthiness, privately
intimated to several senators who stood near
him that he would not be displeased if the Senate failed to confirm Mr. Jarrett's appointment.

He was to be a good fit for the appointment.

Elkinton, October 11.—At an adjourned meeting
of the republican convention of the third congressional district to-morrow. Samuel J. Bentz was unanimously nominated for congress.

Pittsburgh, October 11.—The democratic committee
of the second congressional district to-day agreed
to support William Everett, independent
nominee. The democrats at their convention
nominated John Quincy Adams, whose declination
had been confirmed, and he and sons of
his friends were embittered with the national republican party.

The coal and iron miners far and wide were
appalled by this alleged affront to their representative.

Jarrett, who is still a ableish
schemer, and who is still the predominant
of the amalgamated union to run for congress. He thought his labor friends would enable him to secure the republican nomination
in one of the Pittsburgh districts but they didn't. They saw his selfish schemes and abominable conduct, and the republican
sentiment, the extent of which no man can
now estimate, set in among coal and iron workers in this state, West Virginia and Ohio.

THE CONSTITUTION,

Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, OCTOBER 12, 1884.

INDICATIONS for the South Atlantic States at 11 a.m. generally fair weather except on the immediate southern coast, local showers and partly cloudy weather, east to south winds, nearly stationary temperature.

ROCHESTER and Fannier, the participants in the duel of last Friday, were the lions of Paris yesterday.

A letter from the surgeon general of the Marine hospital to Dr. McFarland, of Savannah, gives some valuable suggestions for the prevention of cholera.

GOVERNOR CLEVELAND will rise early next Wednesday and run down to New York to present at the great Brooklyn demonstration that night. He will return to his official duties at Albany the next day.

GERMANY and England may not be contemplating hostilities, but there is evidently no love lost between the two great powers just now. The defiant tone of the Universal Gazette is calculated to provoke the ire of the queen's "niece."

One jockey and several fine race horses have been killed on the American turf this season. Yesterday four horses fell at Jerome park and four jockeys had a remarkable escape from death. One of the horses was killed and another will probably have to be shot. Racing is expensive, even to those who keep away from the pool box.

WE are accustomed to think of the vicious use of dynamite only in connection with the nihilists of Russia and the other secret societies which constantly disturb the dreams of European despots. The first great dynamite act on this continent occurred yesterday, when the new parliament building in Quebec was shivered by two fearful explosions. There is an investigation to be had, but the materials for it are very meager. The Irish and French in Quebec are bitterly accusing each other of the crime and serious trouble is apprehended as the result of this exchange of compliments.

THE announcement of Mr. R. F. Milner as an independent republican candidate for congress in the fourth district, and the withdrawal of Lindsey, the colored independent, in his favor, argues the necessity of a united action of the democrats of the district in the support of the nominee, Colonel Harris. The division in the democratic ranks is to be deplored, and it is to be hoped that Colonel Persons, the independent democrat, will no longer stand in the way of democratic success. Mr. Milner will poll the solid and united republican vote, and it behoves every democrat in the district to cast his vote for the nominee of the party. Unless something is done to adjust the difference in the democratic ranks there is a probability that the fourth district may have a republican representative in the next congress. Let every democrat in the fourth district do his duty and send a true democratic representative to congress.

THE CONSTITUTION'S TRADE ISSUE. The attention which the man-mach trade issue of THE CONSTITUTION has attracted in all parts of the country is, we freely confess, unexpected. We will not say it is undeserved, for while we are duly modest on our own behalf, we are by no means modest on behalf of Georgia and Atlanta, and the trade issue of THE CONSTITUTION was intended to be as nearly as possible an advertisement of these institutions. It was not an adequate advertisement, in the sense of copiousness, as we hope some day to demonstrate, but it is an advertisement that has had a wider circulation than our purposes had made provision.

This additional circulation has been obtained largely by means of the remarkable friendliness of our exchanges in various sections of the country. The peculiar character and extent of the showing made for Georgia and Atlanta have been made the subject of the widest possible comment, and it is comment of a kind not often devoted to "trade issues." We have taken pains to reproduce some of the more elaborate notices which the trade issue of THE CONSTITUTION has received from newspapers outside the state, so that our readers may have an opportunity of observing with what keen interest the progress of Georgia and Atlanta is watched. This we need not dwell upon here, but it is not the newspapers alone that have displayed an interest in the exhibit set forth in the columns of THE CONSTITUTION. Since our trade issue, with its remarkable showing, was tumbled full bell into the channels of information, our business office has been flooded with letters of congratulation and inquiry from the near west and the far west, from the east, from the north, and from Canada. These letters are, for the most part, from capitalists and business-men, showing that the kindly notices of our exchanges have not in the least exaggerated either the interest felt in the progress of Georgia and Atlanta, or the importance of the showing made in the trade issue of THE CONSTITUTION. The demand from abroad for copies of that issue has been greater than we could supply, and more than one enthusiastic applicant has suggested that several hundred thousand copies of the edition should be sent to the world's fair at New Orleans for distribution.

All this is very flattering to Georgia, to Atlanta and to THE CONSTITUTION. In behalf of each of these institutions we return thanks. We appreciate the kindness of our newspaper friends and we are fully alive to the extent and importance of the interest felt in the progress and prosperity of Georgia by those whose good wishes mean something more than a nod and a smile.

In brief, we are more than gratified at the success of THE CONSTITUTION's first serious attempt to bring its state and city to the attention of the country.

A STUBBORN CONGRESSIONAL CONTEST.

More ballots have been taken in other districts, but in none has there been so protracted and at the same time soothed as in the division in the twenty-first district of Pennsylvania—the district at present represented by Governor Curtin. The district is strongly democratic, and will elect a democratic representative this fall if the party can agree to meet.

At least accounts the desperate representatives of the party in the state are concerned. So far as the republicans are concerned, the election of a member of their party in the state is a mere question of buy and sell;

HONEST JOHN SHEEHAN is in Cincinnati. Does Honest John expect to find the ghost of his dear Miss Liza Pinkerton among the rubbles?

Now that the government has disposed of nearly all of its agricultural lands, and the lands of the railroad companies are held on speculation, and the supply of white pine is nearly exhausted, it is difficult to see how the combination of northwestern interests can much longer keep the people who want new homes away from the section that offers to all comers cheap lands, proximity to markets, an unequalled climate, and all the advantages of transportation and settled communities. The northern farmers of Morgan county could not be induced to brave the winters of Dacotah, and as we go along others will seek and find the truth, and after a while the western railroad solicitor himself will be without a post office.

HOW IT STANDS.

THE SITUATION IN OHIO PRESENTED IN ITS TRUE LIGHT.
A Republic State by from Twenty to Forty Thousand Majority—How the Democrats Carried the Legislature and Gubernatorial Election—The Issues Now Presented.

The following letter written by a leading political friend in this city, gives a true insight into the present campaign which is creating so much excitement in our state. We can commend the writer as a man worthy of credit, and would publish his name, but the letter was a purely private one, and, of course, we could not without his consent:

CINCINNATI, September 22d, 1884.—My Dear Friend, As Judge Caldwell once said to Habersham in this state it is not worth the political situation you have asked for it shall have it. This is a Republican state. On a full vote, where the state is good for twenty to forty thousand majority. Last year it gave heavily, for government, and the year before it gave the democratic candidate for secretary of state (Newman) who is now up for reelection, a plurality of over seven thousand votes. The men's election followed the enactment of the legislature of the Smith (Sunday) bill, the law against the liquor traffic, the tax law (taxing everybody and everything), and of course the vote came from republican Germans, who loyally to that party have been voting slightly, but by no means wholly. Shortly after the supreme court met and declared the Pend law unconstitutional. The Smith law became a dead letter. Of its most objectionable features, I am an expert for state officers had then been elected, and the Germans who had left the party, were too numerous to be of any service. This state the liquor men almost unanimously supported the first amendment, and opposed the second, and the temperance people were equally opposed to the dry amendment, while the second, the result was that, although both amendments received a very large vote.

In the case was made up from Cleveland and taken to the supreme court (which was then in session). The key question was on the constitutionality of the Scott law, and it was then decided that the Scott law was unconstitutional. The liquor men almost unanimously supported the first amendment, and opposed the second, and the temperance people were equally opposed to the dry amendment, while the second, the result was that, although both amendments received a very large vote.

The gubernatorial election followed resulting as it has been in the election of the last two years, by a narrow majority, or the heaviest vote but one ever polled in this state. That election brought the supreme court, democratic. Two judges were elected, one to fill the vacancy. At the time done nothing with the Scott law cases are now pending in the supreme court to ascertain its validity, and these cases will probably be heard in the fall, on the docket and given an early hearing.

You then have a republican state then into democratic hands, and the party is now in power, because we hold the legislative majority, who hold the executive power.

The gubernatorial election followed resulting as it has been in the election of the last two years, by a narrow majority, or the heaviest vote but one ever polled in this state. That election brought the supreme court, democratic. Two judges were elected, one to fill the vacancy. At the time done nothing with the Scott law cases are now pending in the supreme court to ascertain its validity, and these cases will probably be heard in the fall, on the docket and given an early hearing.

You then have a republican state then into democratic hands, and the party is now in power, because we hold the legislative majority, who hold the executive power.

A RURAL RETREAT.

NESTLED AMONG THE HILLS OF GORDON COUNTY.

At Atlanta at the Farm of Mr. Richard Peters—Among Mild-Bred Jersey and Imported Angus, and Roaming Over the Fields Redolent with Perfumes of Clover.

Editorial Correspondence Constitution.

FENTS FARM, October 8.—It was a pleasant evening on a sick bed—the ruddy face and the kindly gray eyes of Mr. Richard Peters. Pleasant no were his words.

"Your fever is broken," he said. "Now let me take you to my farm and build you up."

The doctor, wise and sensible, was consulted, and homeopathic though he was, wrote a large prescription. Dose—spring water, fresh milk country air, cattle, clover, goats, trees, butter, duck, shady lanes, hunting and fishing—to be taken away from the city and the town. This was a small advance from police to bring up the patient.

"Our patient went to sleep in his ancient bed, and the next morning he awoke, and found his health improved. He awoke with a sense of well-being, and the doctor, who spoke of him as a weakling, said, 'He is a strong man.'

"The doctor, who spoke of him as a weakling, said, 'He is a strong man.'

THE WORLD'S WEALTHIEST WOMAN.

Miss Mary Garrett, probably the richest unmarried lady living, From the Courier-Journal.

If any of the estimates, even the lowest, placed upon the value of the estate of the late John W. Garrett, the great railroad president, prove to be correct, his only daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Garrett will be the richest unmarried lady in this country. The estimates run all the way from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000, and the latter is quite as likely to be correct as the former. With the Garretts a dollar always cost at least 100 cents, and there is nothing anywhere like "tens" in any of their securities, the sum of their work being to make actual and not apparent value for everything.

Miss Garrett receives as her share of the estate the elegant and costly residence at the corner of Peachtree and Peachtree Park, Atlanta, and its plate, furniture and pictures it contains. This property is just now undergoing extensive improvements and will, when completed, be one of the most beautiful in the city. The Tuxedo gallery will also be worth a large sum, and she was also to be the owner of Monte Carlo, the famous hotel, and the valuable property owned by Mr. Garrett, and of the beautiful Garrett cottage at River Park, where her father's remains now rest. The total value of all this will naturally come in for her third of the personal estate.

The Wolf, of New York, has until now been considered the wealthiest unmarried lady in America, but Miss Garrett's fortune will be even greater than his. Miss Wolf had a masterful mind, and was one of the most brilliant women of her time, and her wealth came from her third of the personal estate.

Miss Garrett is only twenty-eight, but has had more experience in business than any lady in her years in the country. As her father's confidential secretary, she had ample opportunity to study his affairs, and she has had many days of his life she transmitted much of his business and herself.

It is stated of her that on several occasions she met and conversed with her father, and afterwards committed to paper for future reference. Miss Garrett is an expert stenographer, and her knowledge of this art has proven very useful to both her father and herself.

TO LEASE.

I WILL RECEIVE PROPOSALS TO LEASE MY property formerly known as the Sturgis, is located on the corner of East Tennessee and Vine streets, and Georgia Pacific railroads for a term of ten years or more, to include the sale less from the same. The property is situated in the heart of the city, and yields 4,000 gallons of water every two hours, and is situated in the midst of a population of 100,000 people. It can be made one of the finest resorts in the South, and is a very short ride from Atlanta. The water is the purest water in the United States, and has made many remarkable cures. Dr. J. C. Holmes and Dr. H. C. Morris, of Birmingham, and Dr.
John W. Moore, of Atlanta, have been cured by the use of this water. The water has been carefully analyzed by Dr. F. A. Pratt's analysis is as follows:

ATLANTA, Ga., October 30, 1884.—An analysis of the Respectfully, N. A. PRATT, Chemist.

Propositions for lease must be made in writing and sent to me by mail, or to my office at 55 Whitehall Street. They can be mailed to the address and sent to Self Sprgs., Ga., or be on the premises and to any person who wants to lease.

I reserve the right to select the bid that will pay me the best income for the springs, or to select the bids if I desire to do so.

For a Fine Portrait.

For the past few days there has been an exhibition at Pittsford's, a splendid portrait of the late

Frank Bass, for many years connected with this office. The picture is a crayon draw by Miss Mattie Reynolds, of this city. The most remarkable thing about it is that she had only a photograph taken several years ago, and from which she had to draw. The work is pronounced equal to that of any artist in the state.

SOCIAL GOSSIP.

THE FEATURES OF THE WEEK
CHRONICLED.

Entertaining Our Company. The Movement of Our People Abroad Marrying and Given in Marriage—Topics of Interest to Our Lady Readers—Theatrical Matters, Etc.

Prospective Bliss.

Invitations are sent by Mr. C. Nelson, to Miss Julia, daughter of Mrs. S. F. O'Keefe, 132 South Pryor Street.

Wigs.

A rather youngish gentleman of this city asks THE CONSTITUTION where wigs were invented. Perhaps the first was made of hair of a goat, whose owner died of smallpox related to have employed to save the life of her husband.

The First City?

The CONSTITUTION is asked the name of the first city on record to have had the assurance, "Catharine, I am a city and called it Eureka." Perhaps this was the first. Since that day people take more delight in leaving the country and congregating together in cities.

Marriage Announcement.

Fashion says that announcements are to be in the form of an invitation to the wedding, except that in the place of the words, "request your presence," there will be "announce the marriage of our daughter." These words, "announce the marriage of their daughter," in every other respect the announcement tends like an invitation to the wedding.

Marrying a Young Girl.

A few weeks since a young lady asked what THE CONSTITUTION's opinion was of an old man's marrying one very much younger than himself; the same question has again been propounded by a gentleman.

THE CONSTITUTION still refuses to reply. Perhaps he who seeks an answer remembers the words of the old poet: "Fourscore and upward; and to deal plainly, I fear I am not in my perfect mind."

The Street Sweeper.

Several young men, in strongly expressed words, have addressed THE CONSTITUTION and ask if it is not a nuisance, and one that should be suppressed. Some of THE CONSTITUTION men spend the entire night up in their "sky parlors," and far above any of the influences of the sweep. The reason is, that for men like good citizens, sweep over the city, retire before the machine is brought out, and

"People say
Heed not the sweep."

The Mosquito.

Judging from the vast numbers of these pests and their long sojourn in Atlanta, it is to be presumed that the first inhabitants of this vicinity of man's creation may have sought shelter far into a vast hunting ground. Have any of our citizens ever examined one under a microscope? A writer in a scientific paper has said, and stated that in the "hill" of the little beast there are no fewer than five distinct anatomical instruments. They are described as lancet, two sets of forceps, suction pipe, and a small screw engine. When one settles down to business (and there are no idle ones in Atlanta; they are full of energy), the lance is first thrust into the body, then the two sets of forceps back to back begin to work up and down to enlarge the hole, then the pump is inserted and the victim's blood is syphonized away. After this, the screw engine completes the performance; a quantity of poison is dropped into the wound to keep it irritated. Oh! for a good rain, a strong wind, anything to take them off their portable operating class out of the city!

Given Opera House.

Opera's open house will be occupied every night during the coming week, and the entertainments are of a character that will doubtless command a generous patronage. Monday and Tuesday nights, at 8 P.M., will be given the first performances of the dramatic success "Lady Clare." Miss Welby is a woman of queenly presence, and possesses a histrionic ability of a high order. Her costume is one of her strong points. Mrs. H. H. D'Arcy is the prettiest actress in the troupe, and her conception of characters is fine. Mr. Hart Horn is the heavy comedy man, and at the time the elements of a first-class actor. Mr. John Binxing is a general favorite. Miss Grace Logan sang with exquisite beauty. In short, the program is a good one. The story is the old one of the woman who loves one man and marries another out of pluck, and pays the penalty of her folly to the last. The drama finally triumphs, however, and a happy understanding is brought about between the couple, but not until the wife, in whom the wife, and former lover, in the play, is full of interest situations, the most amazing of which is the amateur theatrical re-enactment.

Personals.

Mr. W. A. Hunter and family, of Decatur, have moved to Atlanta.

Mrs. C. F. Furlow, of Americus, will make Atlanta her home during the winter.

Mrs. D. A. Simpson, and children, of Edwardsville, Ala., have joined Mr. S. in Atlanta.

Houston, Texas: Post, Olin Wellborn's services seem to be in demand in Texas. In every part of the state people want to hear him speak.

Mr. J. J. James has rented until Orme's house on the corner of Peachtree and Pryor streets.

Mr. Phelps and wife will live with him.

"Nay, I woulch not let it thee as I am, in Atlanta, to my two sons, two daughters, and myself."

He says he has two sons, two daughters, and himself.

Edmund Courier: "On Friday evening last the senior had the pleasure of meeting Miss Annie Foy, one of Atlanta's charming young ladies."

The regret of a large circle of friends and acquaintances was manifested when the young and promising couple left the city during the week for their new home, Birmingham, Ala.

It was Anna Cora Tipton, that suggested the idea of Cupid no longer pinned his darts with such a lack of boldness, and with such a more surely pierced the heart, and leaves no scar behind.

Now, now at night, the mosquitoes force a majority of our citizens to follow the example of the general in the "Pirates of Penzance," who lay upon his sleepless bed, and turned, and tossed, and groaned.

Excuse him if you can.

A beautiful, yet good young man.

Rumor says, that the most retiring, and modest young man in Atlanta, will be married the latter part of November.

Many a man who wishes rain now, and it does not come, many who are bit by mosquitoes, and cannot prevent it, find themselves in the condition of the man who said, "What know not what do, so he wove?"

Rowland F. Cromelin, of Atlanta, Ga., has been appointed to a 8000-berth ship in the naval department, and will be sent to the Far East. He will be selected for the special examination a few days ago for typewriters.

There is a widow in this city, who can raise her eyes timidly to your face, and practice that quivering of the veined and fringed lids, which a June bird woman can so well perform, and finally drop them again, as her eyes as modestly as a maiden of fifteen.

One of the most pleasant social events of the season was the reception given by Mrs. B. W. Wren on Monday evening in honor of several most charming young ladies from Augusta and Savannah. Mrs. Wren as hostess suggests at once a most delightful and enjoyable evening.

The best of the company, and the most elegant, were well reflected by their charming representatives, Misses Connally, Twigg, Fleming and Gandy, of Augusta, and Misses of Savannah.

John C. Clegg, Mrs. M. S. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thompson, Misses Sibley Brown, Kate Peters, Burney and Davis, Pack, and Miss Bellamy, Miss Charles Morris, Mrs. W. H. Bowing, and Pleasant Stoddard, and Flemming of Augusta.

Greer Zachry, Joseph M. Brown, E. C. Spalding, Wm. Plain, Samuel Stocking, Thompson, T. H. Bowing, and Bell of Atlanta.

Visiting Here.

W. H. Howle, of Edwardsville, Ala., visited Atlanta.

Mrs. General Howell Cobb, of Athens, is visiting relatives and friends in Atlanta.

Miss Lula Scott, a pretty young lady of Conyers, Ga., visited Atlanta during the week.

Dr. C. A. Cheatham, of Dawson, is visiting Atlanta, and other points in north Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Downing, who have been visiting in Atlanta, have returned to their home in Ohio.

Mr. J. R. Polah and family, after spending the summer with relatives in Atlanta, have returned home to Dallas, Texas.

Theatrical Items.

Bret Hart's youngest son is to become an actor in Mr. Barrett's company.

Mr. McCullough loses $60,000 by the cancellation of his engagements for the season, but he is rich.

Six companies booked for Atlanta this season could not find the financial pressure, and gave up.

Messrs. Cranford & Gant, managers of Dupee opera house, Athens, refused a date to the Rentz Standard female company.

The Caterina Rose, "Madame Romilda" company have been only three weeks on the road, and yet they disbanded in Newark Wednesday.

Having made a fortune by selling half the season, Joe Jefferson is now laying himself out to make another, writing plays for the other half.

Letter to that of her last professional season. She will positively and permanently retire to private life next year. Few women have been as successful.

A daughter of Maggie Mitchell, Fanchon Marie Paddock, a graduate from Mount St. Vincent convent, near New York, is listed to support Lotte the present season.

In order to pay actual running expenses of the theater, it is necessary to take at least $2,500 per week at each house. This estimate refers to only the ordinary productions.

More than 250 theatrical, musical, operatic and minstrel companies are now in existence, having from twenty-five to sixty-five are regular theatrical companies, thirty-five concert companies, twenty-five variety, twenty-eight operatic and ten are devoted to burlesque.

The drama has three forms. There is comedy, tragedy and melodrama. Tragedy is action—it appeals to the eye; melodrama is sentiment—it appeals to the heart; comedy is action and appeal to the judgment. For the crowd who see them is tragedy; for the women, who feel, there is melodrama; and for the men, who think, there is comedy.

Going—Gone.

Mrs. F. Strange, of Atlanta, is visiting friends in Jonesboro.

Mr. J. A. Sims, of Atlanta, was in Nashville during the week.

Mr. J. H. Blount, of this city, is at the Aragon in Gainesville.

Mr. H. J. Stone is visiting friends and relatives in Charlotte, N. C.

Mrs. C. L. Owen, nee Miss Mary Mabry, is visiting in LaGrange.

Mr. M. M. Head, of Atlanta, is visiting her in Tallahassee, Fla.

Mrs. Etta Cohen, to the regret of her many friends, has gone to Dallas, Texas, where she will spend the winter.

Hon. W. L. Scruggs, who has been spending a few weeks in Atlanta, left the city during the week for Boston, and will remain there as United States minister at that place.

Miss Ophelia Webster, of this city, having enjoyed a few weeks in Atlanta, is now making her second visit to the city, spending a few days in Palmyra, Ohio, with her nieces, Mrs. J. F. Britton, nee Miss Ida Duncan, formerly of this city.

Miss A. T. Spaulding, of Galveston, Texas, has been on a visit of several weeks to relatives in South Carolina, and to her sons, Messrs. W. T. and E. C. Spaulding, of this city. She left Atlanta on Wednesday accompanied by her son, Mr. T. W. Spaulding, for Galveston.

Bridal Etiquette.

Wedding cards or invitations are plain and unpretentious, and words in the old way. The special card for the church is now looked upon as very "done."

At parties given to a newly married couple, the bridegroom and groomsmen are always invited, and the wife and party are expected to wear the same dresses as at the wedding.

Bridesmaids in England are now wearing short costumes of delicately tinted silk, made with Josephine's lace, and the bodice is fastened with the low necked blouses are thrown a little shoulder capes of lace, fastened in front by clusters of autumn leaves or flowers.

In preparing a bridal outfit it is best to purchase a pattern for some months in advance.

If you are going to travel, have a neat dress and cloak of some plain color and a close bonnet and veil. Avoid as far as possible vulgar display of your position as a bride whilst traveling.

If the bride gives a reception in her own house, after returning from her bridal tour, she should have a simple lace or white muslin dress, and the supper should be set. If a morning reception, let her wear a handsome light silk, collar and sleeves of lace. Lace and cake sufficient to hand around the room are musts.

At an evening reception let the bride wear full dress, but not her wedding dress.

Dress.

One glaring color or conspicuous article will mar the beauty of a dress.

To appear well dressed there should be harmony between colors and materials.

In making up the various parts of the toilet, care should be exercised that each article fits accurately.

The style of the female must be consulted as to what is most suitable for the dress and the shape in which it is made.

Do not be too submissive to the dictates of fashion, nor be too oblique to the occasion upon which it is worn. Toilet may be offensive to good taste and propriety by being too elaborate.

A lady should dress according to her circumstances: she should let nothin's distract her from her toilet.

The simplest materials, harmony of color, according fitting to the figure and perfect neatness, will make you appear well dressed.
